

Electronic TTRS Service

Tradelink's electronic Textiles Trader Registration Scheme (TTRS) service provides electronic delivery and processing of all textiles notifications under the Textiles Trader Registration Scheme in a one-stop-shop manner.

The electronic TTRS service allows the electronic submission of all notifications for textiles shipments which fall within the Scheme which include import of textiles (Import Notification), export of HK origin textiles (Export Notification I), export of non-HK origin textiles (Export Notification II) and transshipment of textiles (Transshipment Notification).

The service provides greater facilitation to traders in completing their notifications, and to carriers in checking that the notifications are duly completed. The paperless submission can save efforts in handling the notifications and related documents. In the case of Export Notification II and Transshipment Notification, the requirement of supporting documents for notifications is streamlined where electronic TTRS service is used.

Service Benefits

Saving in notification charges

You can enjoy a lower fee when submitting your notifications through the electronic TTRS service than by the paper method.

Under the new TTRS fee structure to be implemented on 25 June 2007, there is a price difference between paper notification and electronic notification to reflect the Government's policy in promoting the use of electronic commerce. Notifications submitted through the electronic TTRS service is charged at HK$0.50 each whereas paper notification will be charged HK$4.3 – a substantial saving of HK$3.8 per notification!

Greater facilitation

When textiles notifications are sent electronically through the system, omissions and inconsistency of information in the notifications will be easily detected. An electronic message will be sent to traders to facilitate their rectification. This will be a great facilitation to traders in completing their textiles notifications, and to carriers in checking that the notifications are duly completed.

Integration with Trade Declaration Services

With the data inheritance feature of the ValuNet Deluxe software, all relevant information in the electronic notification can automatically be transferred to create a new import or export declaration. This can save your time and effort retyping the trade declaration forms.

Paperless submission

It will no longer be necessary for traders to deliver hard copies of textiles notifications to carriers. At the same time, it is not necessary for carriers to deliver the paper notifications to the Trade and Industry Department ("TID"). Carriers will receive the notifications electronically from traders. It is only necessary for carriers to quote the reference number of the notifications in their electronic cargo manifests to submit to TID.

Longer service hours

By using the electronic TTRS service, communications between traders and the government are round-the-clock 7 days a week.

Easy to track your past submissions

By using the electronic TTRS service, all the TTRS notifications are stored and archived in electronic format. This can save you valuable storage space and resources. Electronically-stored notifications allow simple and handy retrieval of historical records.
