Managed Security Service

A comprehensive way to monitor your network security structure

Increased usage of the Internet and e-Commerce makes network security a growing concern among enterprises. To prevent hackers and information leakage, companies are required to continuously monitor the network for any abnormal activities so as to take necessary precautions against hacking activities.

With the state-of-the-art information security technology, Tradelink's "Managed Security Service" provides round-the-clock monitoring on customers' network devices as well as their applications. One of the key features of the Service, the Vulnerability Assessment function enables customers to monitor specified network devices and applications at specific time so as to identify any potential network risks in advance. Monitoring reports are compiled for analysis on abnormal network activities and potential threats to information leakage.
